So what specifically should be shown here? Also, we will be marking the boarder as present automatically if they choose the School Absence option, we'll not mark present and then mark school absence as suggested on the provided screenshot. Let us know if anything else needed here. @Sonali Gaikwad @Ayush Kharpuse @Vivek Jadhav                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | [6 earlier replies not shown] [14:18] Kumaraswamy R: Hi @Lee 1. This is how the new status labels look in the Roll Call students list (see attached SS). Is this fine? 2. About showing the same status on Dashboard list and other screens, which roll-call status to consider if there are multiple roll-calls for a given day? a. Currently, the current student status is shown on the Dashboard list (signed in, signed out, off-campus, overdue) [14:20] Lee: > 1. Our app opens a specific screen as default based on settings in the CMS. If App Help is only added to parents and staff, it will mess up how the app works for students and the app opens the News Archive by default for students. So, can we try one of these two options instead? 1. Move the App Help link to the bottom of the menu, or 2. Show it to all users—parents, staff, and students. [17:32] Lee: show it for all users then please [17:32] Lee: needs to be up top [17:42] Kumaraswamy R: Noted with thanks. @Shruti Kokate, please do the needful.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
